

Media Release

For immediate Use: 10/07/05

College Students Forming SWAT Team to Combat Community Issues

Worcester – College students from throughout Worcester are making a strong impact on their campuses and within their communities in regards to the issues of hunger, homelessness, education, the environment, youth services, housing, cross-cultural relations, and health.

To unite students in this effort, the Community Engagement Committee of the Colleges of Worcester Consortium, Inc., is hosting a student-focused, community issues discussion on Saturday, Oct. 22 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Quinsigamond Community College, 670 West Boylston Street, in room 109 of the Harrington Learning Center.

The goal of Students Working All Together (SWAT) is to gather college students from throughout the city to provide an opportunity to meet like-minded peers from other campuses to plan and implement ideas. Representatives from various local organizations involved with these issues will be present as well, to offer information, resources, and guidance. Interested students from area colleges are invited to attend.

For more information, contact Mary Newman at QCC at (508) 854-2762, Ryan DiAngelis at Clark University at (508) 421-3785, or Pamela Boisvert at the Colleges of Worcester Consortium at pboisvert@cowc.org.

-30-

For additional information contact:
Victor Somma, Director of Marketing and Public Affairs at 508-854-2729 or vsomma@qcc.mass.edu